Find out and present, in any way you like, the Greek alphabet. Remember to include the names of the letters. Do you recognise any of the letters from anywhere?	Explain what happened at the ancient games. Who took part? How long did the games last? Which events were included? You could create a 'Good Morning Greece' style news broadcast!	Research a different Greek legend to the ones studied in class. Retell the story using a story board. (See teacher for story board if needed)	Create a family tree showing relationships between the Greek gods and goddesses. Mount Olympus would make a good background image. Why is this?	Make a 3D Trojan Horse with a hidden compartment. - You could use recyclable materials or anything you have at home. - Think about which materials would be the most suitable. Decorate your horse.	If you were a Greek god or goddess, what would you consider to be the most important things to consider when designing buildings? Choose one and focus on what they might like, and need, personally.
Make an information booklet about voting in Ancient Greece. Who was allowed to vote in Ancient Greece? What sort of things did they vote on? How were their officials chosen?	Create a brochure to advertise going on holiday to Greece. Include location, weather and climate as well as important landmarks. What might you be able to do there?	Create a set of interview questions that you'd like to ask an athlete from the ancient games. You could always film yourself asking and answering the questions! Be the athlete too!	Analyse the difference between Athens and Sparta and find some reasons why they fought each other constantly. A famous battle was called The Battle of Marathon . What are its links to a very popular modern day event?	Research the different types of food the Ancient Greeks might have eaten. Try cooking a Greek meal for your family. Ask your family to rate your meal /10 and give reasons for their score. Take pictures and write up their reviews.	.Free Choice!
